1. Listen attentively to an audio/text on deforestation and identify at least 3 causes.

2. Listen to peers' community experiences and summarize 2 effects of deforestation in our community.

3. Demonstrate active listening behaviours - eye contact, questioning, paraphrasing.

Instructional Materials:

Audio clip / teacher read-aloud story on deforestation in Kumasi, Pictures of deforested sites at Atwima, KWL Chart, Listening Comprehension Graphic Organizer - Cause & Effect T-Chart, Marker board

Phase

Teacher Activity with Literacy Integration Learner Activity - Listening Focus Time

Starter / Activating Prior Knowledge. Jacob's Strategy 1.

Teacher activity -Teacher plays sounds of chainsaw/tree falling.
" What do you hear? Have you seen trees cut around your community?" Introduces K-W column: What we KNOW about tree cutting, What we WANT to know.

Listening focus -Learners listen actively to sound stimulus and to peers.

Learner activity -They share personal stories of bush burning / charcoal burning in their area. Listening to build background. 10 mins

Main Activity 1: Purposeful Listening Input . Jacob's Strategy 2 Teacher activity - Teacher reads aloud a short case study: "Deforestation at Atwima Nwabiagya". Gives listening purpose before. Teacher reads twice with think-aloud".

Learners activity -Listen to pick 3 causes and 2 effects. Use your T-Chart to jot.

Listening focus - Learners practice listening for comprehension. They do NOT write full sentences, they listen and fill the Cause and Effect T-Chart organizer as they hear. They show listening behaviours - facing speaker, nodding. 20 mins

Main Activity 2: Listening to Learn from Peers

Teacher activity -Teacher puts learners in mixed groups of 4. Learners activity -Each group member shares one effect they heard/wrote and how it affects their community - farming, rainfall. Teacher models sentence starters for active listening: "So what I heard you say is..." "Can you explain more on..."

Listening focus -Learners engage in Think-Pair-Share Listening. Listener must paraphrase speaker's point before adding theirs.
Group compiles a common list of effects. This uses listening as a tool to co-construct knowledge. 20 mins

Assessment:

Assessment FOR and AS Learning:

Teacher activity - Teacher uses Listening Observation Checklist - eye contact, paraphrasing, ability to recall. Asks oral questions

Learners activity -Ama, what cause did Kwame mention?" - to assess if they listened to peer, not just teacher.

Listening focus - Learners complete L column of KWL chart - What we LEARNED by listening. 2 learners present group summary. Class gives listening feedback. 7 mins

Reflection:

Teacher activity -Teacher asks: How did listening help us understand deforestation better than just reading silently. Gives homework

Learners activity-Go home and " listen" to an elder about how the community forest was 10 years ago vs now.

Listening focus -Learners reflect on listening process. 3 mins

Differentiation:

For struggling listeners, provide picture cues on T-Chart. For advanced, they generate 2 listening questions for the class.

Evaluation - Literacy Focus:

1. Did the K-W-L activation help learners listen with purpose? Yes, because they connected the topic to their own community at Kaase / Aboabo, which made listening authentic - as Jacob says literacy must be situated.

2. Did the graphic organizer scaffold listening comprehension? Learners who normally struggle to recall oral information could organize information by cause/effect because listening was made visible.

3. Challenge: Some learners wanted to interrupt instead of listening to paraphrase. Next time I will provide more time to explicitly teach listening etiquette.

Core Competencies Developed:* Communication and Collaboration, Critical Thinking through listening.
